Event Description: 200 tickets will be printed and numbered 1-200. Each ticket is sold for $100.00 each. The purchaser will fill in their name and phone number on the bigger part of the ticket, tear it off, and give it back to the seller. This part of the ticket will be taped up on a large wooden board that is numbered to correspond with the ticket numbers in numerical order 1 to 200. Empty film canisters are used to put numbers 1 to 200 in. Each canister will hold one number and will be placed in a large cage wheel with a turning arm so the tickets can be mixed. The film canisters are spun in the cage and pulled out one at a time by Captain Pud Valentine who will then announce the number to the crowd. The pulled number corresponding to the number hanging will be removed from the board by Jonathon

Layman. When the count reaches 150, 100, and 50 the drawn ticket will be given the opportunity to be repaid the $100 ticket amount or return the ticket to the cage. When the count reaches the last 5 ticket holders are given the opportunity to stop the drawing and split the money equally or keep drawing one ticket at a time until the last ticket is left. Karen Chambers will be recording each ticket as it is pulled counting down from 200 on a log sheet for the squad.
